As civilian employees of the Police Department, dispatchers work in the emergency communications center and often serve as a citizen's first point of contact. St.Albans Central Dispatch maintains a high standard of effective call taking, dispatching and communication between members of the Police, Fire, EMS and all the citizens of Franklin County.

At the Central Dispatch, the dispatchers respond to requests for information or police services received through 911 emergency calls, routine telephone calls and from citizens who come to Police Headquarters. These requests can range from emergency situations needing immediate police service, such as an accident or a burglary in progress to providing citizens with directions to local businesses.

Central Dispatch, dispatches for 35 agencies in and around Franklin County which include Milton PD and Franklin County Sheriff Dept. It is a 24/7/365 dispatch center and one of only six Public Safety Answering Points (PSAPS) in the State of Vermont that answers all of the 911 calls for Vermont. Central Dispatch handles over 100000 phone calls per year.

A message from Chief Maurice Lamothe

The St. Albans Police Department is committed to building stronger relationships within the greater St. Albans community that is known for its hard working, caring and involved citizens. Our philosophy is to work with local residents and support agencies to utilize and enhance these coordinated efforts and make our community as safe as possible through larger, broader inclusive partnerships.

Our over-arching goal is to remain a respected and professional Police Department through policies, procedures, training and selection of new officers. To align with this goal many of our law enforcement practices are evolving toward community policing which is instrumental in today's law enforcement profession. To achieve this, we need to consider 21st Century Policing "pillars" such as Build public trust through legitimacy, Policy and oversite, Technology and social media, Community policing and crime reduction, Training and education and Officer wellness and safety. These all make for a more transparent and more effective public service department.

Lastly, this is a challenging time for the nation, Vermont and St. Albans when it comes to relationships between law enforcement and those we are sworn to serve and protect. We must remind ourselves that "Police are the public and the public are the police".
We recognize this and know that if we work together great things are possible.

The department provides Administrative, Patrol, Investigative, Crime Prevention, Dispatching and Emergency Management services to a mix of commercial, industrial and residential customers.

The department consists of a well balanced force of officers who are bright, educated, resourceful, community oriented officers with significant experience. We are here to provide you with the finest police service available. Please call us if we can be of service.

The Community Support Unit is currently comprised of three officers who have been chosen to work as liaisons for our department, area resource agencies and community members living in our area. The initiative began last summer with the initial idea consisting of the officers spending time at locations where we knew marginalized populations such as homeless were staying to offer resource information and how to obtain assistance from agencies that people might not have previously known existed.

Additionally, the CSU officers spend time at Martha's Kitchen and have visited Spectrum to be a presence so people realize the PD is approachable and can be a useful resource beyond that of law enforcement duties. We have partnered with the Phoenix House and regularly hand out Harm Reduction Packets to those who may find them beneficial.

Covid has reduced the interaction with the CSU due to safety concerns. With the Governor's restrictions lessening we intend to increase our presence in and around the community.
